Northern Introduces "Fall": A Graphic Tribute to the Forest Floor

Northern is proud to present Fall, a new series of throw blankets designed by the acclaimed Norwegian duo Atle Tveit and Allan Hagerup. Merging the organic unpredictability of nature with mathematical clarity, Fall is a sophisticated textile that captures the serene beauty of the woodland.

The inspiration for Fall comes from the patterns formed by fallen branches on a forest floor. Designers Tveit and Hagerup sought to translate this random rhythm into a balanced, domestic object.

"Our challenge was to balance the accidental with the controlled," say the designers. "We used a mathematical grid to determine the distribution of the motif. This ensures that while the pattern feels spontaneous and alive, it has a harmony that fits perfectly within a modern interior."

Fall features a dual-sided weave and is finished with tonal decorative stitching on all four sides. This clean, framed approach emphasises the blanket's graphic quality, allowing the intricate design to remain the focal point. Crafted from premium New Zealand wool, Fall brings the tranquillity of the outdoors inside.

"Design is often about simplifying and removing unnecessary noise, while ensuring the final product retains a distinct character and an identity of its own."

The collaboration between Atle Tveit and Allan Hagerup brings together two established perspectives in Norwegian design. Atle is a graduate of the Bergen Academy of Art and Design, while Allan graduated from the Oslo National Academy of the Arts with a master's degree in furniture design. Both are award-winning designers who share a focus on furniture and spatial design.

Their partnership is built on an intuitive approach where they build on each other's ideas to create something tangible and concrete. Their shared philosophy focuses on simplifying and removing unnecessary noise, ensuring that every product has a distinct identity and a unique character. This collaborative process involves numerous iterations to refine a precise motif, as seen in the Fall throw blanket for Northern. By combining their strengths, Tveit & Hagerup create products that balance organic inspiration with functional, modern clarity.
